

QUAERENTES VERITATEM

The Truth Seekers

A CONTEMPORARY CATHOLIC THEORY OF COMPLEMENTARITY

PROF. LISA SCHILTZ

Tuesday, October 28, 2014

OSF Library Leather Room (108) Noon – 1:00 pm

This talk explores some of the philosophical foundations for an understanding of complementarity that builds on Sr. Prudence Allen's notion of "integral" rather than "fractional" complementarity, setting the groundwork for a contemporary Catholic theory of complementarity that incorporates many of the insights of modern feminism.

Quaerentes Veritatem (The Truth Seekers) is an interdisciplinary forum for the discussion of the intersection of life and thought with faith.

It is co-sponsored by the Department of Catholic Studies and the Department of Philosophy.
This talk is also being sponsored by the Siena Symposium for Women, Family, and Culture.
